

TYLER JOE MILLER

ABOUT TYLER JOE MILLER: Signed to MDM Recordings Inc. in 2019, Surrey, BC's Tyler Joe Miller quickly began to make a name for himself in Canadian country music and continues his meteoric rise with the release of his latest single "Never Met a Beer", a collaboration with fellow rising country star Matt Lang which was streamed over 1700 times an hour in the first 24 hours after its release. After releasing his Gold Certified debut single, 'Pillow Talkin'" at the end of 2019, the catchy tune quickly earned him the title of iHeartRadio Future Star and became his first #1 single at Canadian country radio. What followed was an unprecedented and record-breaking climb with follow-up single 'I Would Be Over Me Too', which steadily rose on the charts and earned Miller the distinction as the first independent Canadian country artist to reach #1 at radio with their first two singles. His debut EP Sometimes I Don't, But Sometimes I Do included the singles 'Fighting' and 'Sometimes I Do', reaching the Top 10 and Top 5 respectively at radio. These tracks, along with the lead single off his sophomore project 'Wild as Her" have been collectively streamed over 33 million times to date. During the 2021 Canadian Country Music Awards (CCMA's) weekend, Miller was named SiriusXM's 2021 Top of the Country winner in addition to receiving four CCMA Award nominations ("Rising Star", "Male Artist Of The Year", "Album Of The Year" and "Amazon Music & Alexa Fan's Choice"). Most recently, Miller has been nominated for "Amazon Music & Alexa Fan's Choice" and "Male Artist of the Year" for the 2022 CCMA Awards set to take place in Calgary in September. Continuing with the momentum from his meteoric rise, Miller is currently on the road across Canada for the remainder of 2022 and continuously working on new music to be released later this year.
