

Savannah Jade

Born and raised in Québec, rising country star Savannah Jade took an interest in music and live performance at an early age when she became captivated with the beauty of an unlikely medium—opera. While her musical pursuits would come later, she first channelled her passion for performance into a career as a professional figure skater, a skill she continues to nurture to this day. She used her love of the sport as inspiration to help others, coaching new athletes, establishing a figure skating program for students in her hometown's high school, and starting a foundation committed to providing financial aid to aspiring talents hoping to realize their own dreams.

In 2013, after auditioning for The Voice Quebec, Savannah Jade knew without a doubt that a career in music was something she wanted to pursue. She embarked on her musical journey with fervour, becoming one half of the dynamic Canadian country duo, Five Roses. Signing with MDM Recordings Inc., Five Roses made their debut with the single "Might As Well Be Me," which garnered over a million collective streams, earning them the prestigious title of iHeartRadio/Pure Country Future Star. Savannah Jade's talent and command of the stage shone as they were named semi-finalists in the 2022 SiriusXM Top of the Country competition, and she continued to hone her craft at major festivals like Boots and Hearts Music Festival and LASSO Music Festival, and as direct support on Tebey's Shotgun Rider Tour.

In 2024, Savannah Jade made her solo debut with the song "He's The One," which has garnered over one million streams and continues to climb. The track earned Stingray's "Trending Track" designation and led to her being named a "One to Watch" by Rogers Radio. She is now celebrating the release of her self-titled debut EP, available digitally everywhere.

Imaginative, innovative, and adaptable, Savannah Jade is a true artistic force. Alongside her musical and figure skating endeavours, her creative spirit truly knows no bounds. She uses painting as an additional medium to express herself and is a trained hair stylist, adding another layer to her diverse skill set. Her love for fashion has led her to design her own clothing, continuing her journey of self-expression through art. Continuously working on new music,

Savannah Jade is forging her own unique path down a fresh creative avenue, and captivating audiences with her vision, talent, and artistry.
